ROUTLEDGE KEGAN PAUL

ROUGH ISLANDERS
OR THE NATIVES OF ENGLAND

By H. W. NEVINSON. With 16 plates by C. R. W. NEVINSON. 7s. 6d. net.

A work on England and the English by one who is not afraid to speak out and whose intimate knowledge of his countrymen is the fruit of a long and varied experience. From monarch to man-in-the-street, in industrial town and country cottage, he surveys us with a sympathetic eye. This is a book to buy and treasure both for the text and for the plates.

THE VICTORIAN TRAGEDY

By E. WINGFIELD-STRATFORD. 10s. 6d. net.

"A detailed survey of the Victorian era. Dr. Wingfield-Stratford has at command a vast erudition, and he bears it with ease. His vivid style challenges comparison with Mr. Lytton Strachey's. He makes history a story, and so delightfully readable that the dry-as-dusts suspect his soundness. But this very suspicion is a high compliment in disguise, and we rejoice in a social historian who, like Professor Trevelyan, never allows us to forget that Clio is a Muse."—Morning Post.

MESSALINA, OR LIFE IN IMPERIAL ROME

By H. STADELMANN. 15s. net.

Life in Imperial Rome, with its contrasts of luxury and poverty, is the background to this vivid study of the Empress Messalina. Mad, sensual, and grotesque, she is shown as virtually tyrant of the city, with her husband, the Emperor Claudius, half dolt, half man of genius, by her side. The story of the married life of this extraordinary pair is followed out to its tragic ending.

ANNALS OF CRIME

By W. H. WILLIAMSON. 10s. 6d. net.

Here are the stories of eleven extraordinary women criminals and the crimes they committed. These studies of human nature in its most vicious aspects include Jeanne de la Cour, Mrs. Maybrick, Madeleine Smith, Constance Kent, and Helen Jagado.

LOVE IN THE MACHINE AGE

By FLOYD DELL. 12s. 6d. net.

Serious, constructive, and well-documented, this volume is among the most important contributions to a successful solution of the contemporary sex anarchy which has yet appeared. Indeed, it provides not merely a philosophy of sexual behaviour, but a philosophy of life which will make a strong appeal to the modern minded.

WORDSWORTH

By Professor C. H. HERFORD. With a portrait, 6s. net.

The discovery of Annette Vallon and of the original Prelude has deeply affected the modern view of Wordsworth. In this compact critical biography the poet is presented in a new light, and his poetry and philosophy are freshly interpreted.

PRINCESSES AND RÉPUBLICAINES OF THE TERROR

By THERESE LOUIS LATOUR. 16 plates, 15s. net.

Historical accuracy, vigorous narrative, and psychological insight make these biographical studies of the women of the Revolutionary Period of absorbing interest. Marie Antoinette, the Princesse de Lamballe, Charlotte Corday, Théroigne de Méricourt, and many others come to life in her pages.

ITALY AFTER THE RENAISSANCE

By LACY COLLISON-MORLEY. 16 plates, 15s. net.

An account of Italy during the little studied period of the seventeenth century. There are chapters on the most important capitals, Naples, Rome, Florence, and Venice, describing social life, general conditions, ceremonies and crimes, as well as the leading personalities of the day.

LIBERTY

By EVERETT DEAN MARTIN. 10s. 6d. net.

This lucid volume explains what liberty means in relation to the modern world and notes the enemies active against it. It traces the significance of liberty through the ages, from ancient Athens to Rousseau, in chapters which form an invaluable history of an important development in human thought.

CHINESE CIVILIZATION

By Professor M. GRANET. 12 plates and 5 maps, 25s. net.

"A full picture of the cultural development of China. He shows the family group system, the long dominance of the matriarchate, and the slow emergence of inheritance in the male line in their proper relationship with the setting-up of a feudal order and a complex social life. There is much wealth of detail, and the author has allowed his well-controlled imagination to impart vigour to normally dead skeletons. This excellent volume."—Yorkshire Post.

HARRAP

"Plum" Warner's Great Cricket Book

The Fight for the Ashes in 1930

By P. F. WARNER. With 48 Photographs. 15*s. net.*

E. B. OSBORN (Morning Post): "Every cricketer or lover of cricket should acquire Mr. Warner's history of this year's Australian tour. Every game played by the victorious invaders is judiciously described, often with charming little touches of characterisation, and no better illustrations ever appeared in a book about cricket."

Primitive Folk-tales

Myths and Legends of the Australian Aboriginals

By W. RAMSAY SMITH, F.R.A.I. With 16 Plates in Colour and other Illustrations. 21*s. net.*

Manchester Guardian: "The myths and legends collected in this volume serve as a demonstration of the aboriginal's remarkable psychology. They are of the very web of daily life. Dr. Ramsay Smith has given them in the form of a continuous narrative, in which the stories are connected by a description of relevant customs, beliefs, and practices. The legends are retold with considerable skill which avoids the tedium of too many collections of folk-lore without impairing the distinctive and sometimes bizarre quality."

MACMILLAN

Sidelights on Queen Victoria

By the RT. HON. SIR FREDERICK PONSONBY, G.C.B., G.C.V.O. With Illustrations. 21s. net.

The Daily Telegraph: "This book is valuable historically because the documents of which it is largely composed enable us to go for once behind the stilted phrases of official or even formal correspondence."

John, Lord Montagu of Beaulieu

By LADY TROUBRIDGE and ARCHIBALD MARSHALL. With Portraits and other Illustrations. 21s. net.

SIR WILLIAM BEACH-THOMAS in The Observer: "The memoir will please those who knew him, whether as friends or acquaintances—an immense crowd—and it would have pleased John Montagu himself; it is clear, kindly, and unaffectedly told, and the praise is concrete."

The Ladies of Llangollen

Edited by MRS. G. H. BELL. 21s. net.

The Week-end Review: "The diaries of the Ladies of Llangollen are a notable and valuable addition to diary literature as well as being of quite unusal psychological interest."

England in the Age of the American Revolution

Book I. Government and Parliament under the Duke of Newcastle.

By L. B. NAMIER. 25s. net.

 Mr. Namier, in the preface to his book on The Structure of Politics at the Accession of George III, described it as, in a way, introductory to his main work on the history of England in the age of the American Revolution. Of that work the present volume forms the first part.

British Foreign Policy, 1660-1672

By KEITH FEILING, Student of Christ Church and sometime Fellow of All Souls, Oxford. 18s. net.

Mr. G. M. Trevelyan in The Observer: "This most interesting volume. . . . The interest of the volume lies largely in the fact that 'British foregn policy' is not treated as an isolated story, as it much too often is treated, but as an integral part of the social and domestic politics of the country."

H. G. WELLS

a sketch for a portrait

by GEOFFREY WEST

With an Introduction by Mr Wells

Illustrated Large Crown 8vo 10*s* 6*d*

This book is a study of H. G. Wells as man, as artist, and as thinker—for the three aspects cannot be separated. With the aid of a large number of hitherto unpublished letters, generously placed at his disposal by Mr Wells and his friends, the author is enabled to give—for the first time with any fullness—the romantic story of his subject's early struggles, together with an account and criticism of his later achievements as novelist and publicist. Here, in fact, is an indispensable commentary to keep beside Mr Wells's own books, as well as a fascinating picture of society in transition.

Special features of the book are a series of portraits of Mr Wells, reproductions from a number of his entertaining sketches, and facsimiles of his letters; also a bibliography which gives a complete list of his first editions, including student writings.

AUTUMN BOOKS

Alfred Tresidder Sheppard

has delighted booksellers and critics alike with The Art and Practice of Historical Fiction (12s. 6d.). "Some books give the trade a pleasure to handle and this is one of them."—Publishers' Circular. "Good humour, easy learning, and lively enthusiasm."—Marjorie Bowen, in The Morning Post. "Here is indeed entertainment."—H. L. Morrow, in Everyman. "I have thoroughly enjoyed reading it."—John Drinkwater, in the Daily Telegraph. "One of the fullest, most companionable, and most fascinating books we have seen for a long time."—Manchester City News.

The Proper Study

of mankind being its noble self, we need not recommend a book whose title is This Human Nature (12s. 6d.), especially when the author is Charles Duff, the witty Irishman whose satirical skirmish with the execution industry, A Handbook on Hanging, is one of the best modern examples of belligerent gaiety. From wrestling in the ketch-as-ketch-can style, Mr. Duff has turned to grapple with the immense oddity of man. He sweeps world-history with an ironic and disconcerting beam.

Anita Loos . . Eve . . Gide!

The Quite Impossible She is the theme of Henry Savage's How to Manage our Women (7s. 6d.). "An engaging book . . . written in the style of Anita Loos plus the Letters of Eve plus 'Paludes,' by M. André Gide."—Harold Nicolson, in the Daily Express.

Paris . . . and Baudelaire

Pierre Loving's Cat of Heaven is novel and biography in one. "The book is a wonder. It might have been the work of half a lifetime. Every personality of its period comes in and fits into the mosaic of the background; while the poet himself is first studied and then painted with amazing understanding . . . could hardly have been better told."—Alice Herbert, in the Yorkshire Post. (7s. 6d.)

Muirhead Bone Writes

a charming foreword to Margaret Holden's Near Neighbours. A new house; a garden to be made; how it is peopled by families of bird friends; tragedies and comedies in their lives; many years of observation have gone to make the book. Laurence Angus's wood-engravings are a joy in themselves; cunning work by one who is artist and bird lover too. 6s. and 15s. (100 only.)

The Modern Boy Wants

a book that tells him quite straightforwardly how engineering marvels are accomplished. We have found it for him in W. D. Binger's What Engineers Do (7s. 6d.). Not a "children's book" but just what the lover of meccano and model railways wants. Appeal to the same quarter is made by Old Man of the Woods (2s. 6d.). Its author, Marcus Woodward, is well known to Guides and Scouts.

India . . . . and Scotland

Everyman's guide to the Round Table Conference appears shortly in Professor Coatman's How India Reacts to the Simon Report (1s.). Twenty years in India, finishing up as Director of Public Information, has given the author a very wide knowledge of opinion in that country. Another pamphlet comes from the sprightly pen of George Malcolm Thomson, who writes on The Kingdom of Scotland Restored. (1s.).

The history of a gay rogue, his amorous adventures, his poetical and musical triumphs, and the bitter misfortunes which pursued him to the grave.

WHISTLER: THE FRIEND
By ELIZABETH ROBINS PENNELL. Co-author of "The Life of James McNeill Whistler." 20 Illustrations. 12s. 6d.
This is a picture of the young Whistler, before he became famous, eager to help his friends and improve himself.

AN HOUR OF ART
By WALTER PACH. Author of "Ananias or The False Artist." (The One Hour Series.) 4s. 6d.
In this volume the author shows how art is the expression of each and every race, and how to "recognise the presence of art" in its thousands of varied forms.

THE ART SPIRIT
By ROBERT HENRI. Compiled by MARGERY RYERSON, and with an Introduction by FORBES WATSON. 12s. 6d.
A new edition, with twelve illustrations, of an exceedingly popular book.

THE FRENCH NOVEL
By PIERRE MILLE. Translated by ELISABETH ABBOTT. 8s. 6d.
M. Mille, himself a writer of note, has written a brief, critical history of the novel in France which will fill a gap in many people's knowledge.

CHEMISTRY OF FAMILIAR THINGS
By SAMUEL SCHMUCKER SADTLER, S.B. Sixth edition. Revised and enlarged. 15s.
This edition contains a synopsis of the most important recent developments relating to chemistry and the entire text has been modified, corrected and brought up to date. A store of valuable information bearing upon everyday life and problems will be found in this layman's Chemistry.

PICTURE ANALYSIS OF GOLF STROKES A Popular Edition.
By JAMES M. BARNES. 21s.
A new popular edition of a most unusual golf book for everyone who plays—beginners, experts and golfers of all grades. There are over 300 illustrations from photographs of "Jimmie" Barnes in action, showing every detail of every stroke, playing every club in the bag. Each picture is carefully described and explained by Barnes, who tells you just how the stroke is being made.

PINOCCHIO
By C. COLLODI. 10s. 6d.
The modern and delightful gift edition of this Classic will delight all children. Ten colour plates and decorative linings by JACK TINKER.

TALES OF A GRANDMOTHER
By GEORGE SAND. Translated by MARGARET BLOOM. 10s. 6d.
These five long stories, which this famous French author wrote for her grandchildren, will enchant every child. Twelve colour plates and many black-and-white illustrations.

FROM MY AUTUMN LIST

FICTION

Jews Without Money

MICHAEL GOLD

Stern and unflinching as is this masterly portrayal of the seething masses of the Ghetto in their daily lives of love, hate, lust, squalor and redeeming beauty, no detail is overdrawn, no horror too deeply etched, no deed of heroism too mawkishly acclaimed. The whole is vivid and convincing and cannot fail to grip the reader be he Jew or Gentile.

7s. 6d. net.

Flint

M. HERBERT WOLF

The story of a Russian musician and his adventures amorous, professional and political in Russia, France, England and America, related with genuine descriptive ability.

7s. 6d. net.

The Port of Fragrance

PUTNAM WEALE

An engrossing picture of the European community in Hongkong about their daily business of politics, soldiering and commerce, and their recreations of tennis, racing and intrigue.

7s. 6d. net.

Thumbcap Weir

FRANCES GILLMOR

A strong, vivid story of love and hate among the New Brunswick fishermen, told with a simple directness that compels attention.

7s. 6d. net.

Syringa Street

CATHERINE CHRISTIAN

A girl, rich, beautiful and illegitimate, the high church vicar of an impoverished London parish, passion and middle-class prudery make an arresting theme. 7s. 6d. net.

Joe Pete

FLORENCE E. MCCLINCHEY

An unflinching novel of conflicting passions and primitive lusts in an Indian community among the great forests of America.

7s. 6d. net.

GENERAL

Robert Louis Stevenson: The Frail Warrior

JEAN MARIE CARRÉ

In this account of R.L.S. we feel him to have been more human than many biographers have portrayed him. The author has broken with the unconvincing tradition of saintlike purity that has centred round his life and has drawn him as a man capable of loving and hating very thoroughly. 10s. 6d. net.

August Strindberg: The Bedevilled Viking

V. J. MCGILL

This volume marks a new departure in contemporary biography—a brilliant combination of narrative and philosophical interpretation. Every aspect of Strindberg's volcanic, contradictory, weird personality is dramatically revealed.

Illustrated in half-tone. 12*s. 6d. net.*

Divorce

H. G. Wells, Rebecca West, André Maurois, Warwick Deeping, Lion Feuchtwanger, Theodore Dreiser, Bertrand Russell and Fannie Hurst give their views upon divorce and the laws relating to it. It is interesting to note that those of the writers who are English are agreed that our own Divorce Laws are hopelessly out of date and urgently in need of reform.

LITERATURE AND OCCULT TRADITION

Studies in Philosophical Poetry

PROF. DENIS SAURAT

The author has already won fame by his books on Milton, Blake and Victor Hugo. He here demonstrates for the first time the new method of approach which has proved so fruitful in his studies of those poets. He reviews the work of the greatest writers of philosophic poetry since the Renaissance and points a way to a much fuller and more complete appreciation of their work. 12s. 6d. net

THE FIRST BULGARIAN EMPIRE

STEVEN RUNCIMAN

Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge

At the time the Saxon Monarchy was established in England there existed a Bulgarian Empire, which for two centuries was an important factor in the development of Eastern Europe. This book describes how, under successive Khans, a medley of barbaric peoples were gradually fused together into one powerful nation, which time and again defeated the hosts of the Emperors of Constantinople. 16s. net

THE DOCTOR, &c.

ROBERT SOUTHEY

Newly edited and abridged from John Wood Warder's edition (1848) by Maurice H. Fitzgerald.
Certainly one of the most remarkable books ever written. Southey was working on it, on and off, for nearly half his life, and he put more of his mind into it than he did into any other work. A huge literary bran-tub into which one may dip and dip again, always certain of finding a prize. Over 400 pages. 7s. 6d. net

POETRY AND THE ORDINARY READER

M. R. RIDLEY

Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford

Mr. Ridley explains the chief poetic forms and initiates the reader into the mysteries of the poet's workshop, showing him how, by the devices of rhythm, rhyme and assonance, similes, and the subtle use of proper names, etc., the poets build up their infinitely various effects. He illustrates his points with a wealth of quotations. 3s. 6d. net

THE ROMANCE OF ARCHAEOLOGY

Dr. R. V. D. MAGOFFIN & E. C. DAVIS

A world-wide survey of archaeological discoveries, including the most recent, presented in a fascinating way. The remains of the original peoples of America have been dealt with especially fully.
